NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—With scores of clues proving to be shortlived and ephemeral and the police at their wits' end for a new and definite "lead", the nationwide search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby centered today in New York City. It was the 11th day of the heartrending quest for the missing child.

Over at the Tombs, the city's famous bastle, a prisoner—as yet unidentified—came in for considerable attention by the police. According to semi-official information he was taken out of the Tombs late yesterday and accompanied to Hopewell, N. J., for questioning in the Lindbergh mystery.

Reported As Suspect
The prisoner, now in custody on a charge unrelated to kidnaping, is reported to be suspected of being one of five men involved in the plot.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Fire Chief Charles Lynn's check on city hydrants yesterday revealed but little trouble. The investigations in cold weather dispel all doubt about their condition. Each hydrant is kept in perfect working order.

It begins to look as though the controversy over the route taken through this section when George Washington went from Newbridge to Erie is to be definitely settled. Next week the official historian of the Washington bi-centennial commission will make a trip over the route and investigate known facts on the possible route.

Pa. News learned this morning that short-cutting thru ice-packed alleys downtown wasn't so much better than using the regular streets. Well, it wasn't experience that taught us, but another man learned that way.

A stove-heated house on which was parked downtown yesterday, and it must have been serving its owner. From a pipe projecting out of the roof of the cabin-like body, a stream of smoke was pouring. And a close look revealed that it was mighty comfy inside.

Part of Lawrence county's school children are being given toxin anti-toxin treatments these days as a preventative measure against diphtheria, Pa. News understands. More will be given after the disappearance of the flu illness.

A little idea of how the Lawrence County Woolgrowers association stands in the state may be secured from the size of the cup the county association carried away from Harrisburg this last year. It stands in the office of the County Farm agent, on South Croton avenue, and is quite the largest loving cup Pa. News has ever seen.

Begin Rochester Plan Effort In New Castle

Under the direction of Scout Executive Herbert G. Horton, 125 Boy Scouts are out today distributing circulars over the city as their part of the work in the "War Against Depression". Each circular calls attention to repair work that can be done around the home, the necessity of helping to banish unemployment and a coupon which can be filled out in which the householder specifies what work he wants done and when he wants it done.

These circulars are a part of the modified "Rochester Plan" which has been adopted for New Castle by the American Legion and the co-operating organizations which are back of this drive against unemployment.

SHANGHAI, Mar. 12.—While armistice negotiations were held in abeyance as diplomats wrestled with words, Chinese and Japanese forces came to blows again today and both sides strengthened their lines with reinforcements.

A Japanese communique revealed that the opposing armies fought a brisk battle five miles northwest of Kiating. The Japanese version stated that the Chinese opened an offensive which was successfully repulsed with heavy Chinese losses and only slight casualties to the Japanese.

New Troops Land.
Meanwhile, the Japanese were moving into strategic positions three thousand new troops from Japan landed at Woosung today along with heavy howitzers pulled by tractors. The Japanese have been quietly busy with their troops for several days, and although engaged in little actual fighting they have been steadily tightening up on their whole line of defenses.

Chinese leaders reported their forces were being added to also, with great reinforcements now en route to General Tsi Ting-Kai, commander of the 19th route army. There was some discussion in the Chinese ranks, however, as several private organizations attacked the central government at Nanking for not supporting the 19th army.

Girl Dancer Is Slain By Former Suitor In Miami

Man Aged 50, Kills Former Sweetheart 22, Then Tries
To End Own Life

(International News Service)
MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Mar. 12.—Firing three bullets into the body of his former sweetheart in a crowded dance hall, George Younes, 50, Weston, Mass., early today killed Catherine Varnancy, 22, of Shrewsbury, Mass., and then tried to end his own life.

As the girl dropped fatally wounded, Younes turned the gun on himself firing a bullet into his head. He is not expected to live. Younes walked up to his former sweetheart as she danced in the arms of her partner, pressed a pistol to her side and fired three times. The crowded dance hall, located on a pier over the ocean, was thrown into an uproar by the shooting.

Bystanders sought to wrest the weapon from Younes, but were unable to disarm him before he shot himself.

ment. Next Wednesday a corps of men and women will call at the homes and lift the circulars that are filled out.

Excellent Co-operation
Thus far the Legion has experienced the finest kind of co-operation, according to R. Loy Boyd, the general chairman of the drive. Two days ago five of the building trades unions announced a voluntary reduction in their hourly rate of pay amounting to about 36 per cent. This offer holds good until June 15.

The only thing needed to make the plan an outstanding success is to have the householders of the city sign up for needed repair work. This it is hoped will be done between now and Wednesday.

Death Cell Is Made Ready To Receive Powers

Harry F. Powers, "Blue-
beard" Slayer, Will Die
March 18

WARDEN DENIES
ANY BREAKDOWN

(International News Service)
MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Mar. 12.—West Virginia's "death house" today was being prepared for Harry F. Powers.

The "Bluebeard slayer," doomed to hang just six days from today, will be removed to the death cell sometime this afternoon, Warden A. C. Scroggins announced, as he supervised preparation of the cell where Powers will spend his last days.

Powers, according to the Warden, "is holding up pretty well."

Breakdown Denied
Reports that Powers was on the verge of a nervous breakdown, that he spent his time in his cell nervously pacing and wringing his hands were termed "overdrawn" by the warden.

Powers, Scroggins said, had a long conference last evening with J. Edgar Law, his attorney, who came here from Clarksburg. What passed between them was not known. The "Bluebeard," condemned to hang for the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, of Northboro, Mass., will be given a sanity examination early next week, Warden Scroggins said. The examination, mandatory under the West Virginia law, will probably be made by Dr. W. D. McClung, of the Huntington State hospital.

Very Few Witnesses
Requests for permission to witness the execution, the warden said.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Mar. 12.—My good old friend Arthur Brisbane sure put one over on me; shows the difference between a good reported and a punk one.

Two weeks ago I had two hours with Al Capone. (That raises Arthur one hour.) He told me all that I read today he told Mr. Brisbane, and more. But there was absolutely no way I could write it and not make a hero out of him, and even such a superb writer as Mr. Brisbane couldn't either.

Everyone you talk to would rather read about Capone than anybody you ever met.

What's the matter with an age when our biggest gangster is our greatest national interest?

Part is the government's fault for not convicting him on some real crime. Now will somebody please suggest what to do with the story I got bottled up with in me and be fair to everybody?

Yours,
Will Rogers.

Talbot Bill In Hands of State Supreme Court

Lengthy Arguments For And Against Relief Bill
Are Ended

JOBLESS MAY GET
$10,000,000

Early Decision Expected On Important Case From Highest Tribunal

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Mar. 12.—Removed from the hurly-burly of legislative bickering, the question of whether a $10,000,000 fund should be appropriated to aid the hungry and jobless of Pennsylvania today rested with the commonwealth's highest tribunal.

In the hands of the state supreme court was the Talbot Act, passed at the extraordinary session of the legislature over the objections of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, which makes the appropriations from the general fund to the poor board districts of the state.

Expect Early Decision.
An early decision on constitutionality of the measure is looked for. The court will either sustain the act as constitutional and within the power of the legislature to enact, or will declare it invalid and beyond the scope of the governor's call for the special session.

"It is a case of great importance and we desired to be fully informed," Chief Justice Frazer said at the conclusion of the hearing.

The appeal of Attorney-General William A. Schnader from the Dauphin county decision holding the act valid was taken under consideration by the supreme court after a day of careful analytical argument by the attorney general and former U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper. The former senator appeared as Amicus Curiae, a "friend of the court" to urge that the act be held constitutional.

Pepper Active.
It was Senator Pepper who marshalled the arguments in favor of constitutionality of the measure. Appearing after Attorney-General Schnader had exhaustively pointed out what he considered defects in the act.

Premier Tardieu Delivers
Stirring Funeral Oration In Paris

(International News Service)
PARIS, Mar. 12.—The mortal remains of Aristide Briand were laid to rest today.

The public of France accorded the departed statesman a national funeral and Paris contributed its own part to the posthumous honors by ceasing, for five full minutes, all activity.

The scurrying taxis and lumbering buses came to an abrupt halt at 2 p. m. when Premier Andre Tardieu began his funeral oration from a rostrum erected in front of the Quai d'Orsay, the building housing the foreign office which Briand ruled so many years.

Paris Pays Tribute.
From then until five minutes past two the city's roar was stilled. Pedestrians in the streets stood still, their heads bowed, until the five minutes had elapsed.

Standing before Briand's coffin, banked with floral tributes, the most conspicuous of which was an imposing wreath from the German government, Tardieu paid tribute to the great career of the "apostle of peace" but drew home to his hearers that Briand, while fighting for peace and international understanding, always fought for France.

"Briand never consented to, counseled nor desired sacrifice of military guarantees," Tardieu said. "His maxim was security."

Judge Finletter Postpones
Kline-Succop Case Until May 2

TIME IS NEEDED
TO SELECT JURY

New Panel Of Jurors Will Be Drawn For May Term
Of Court

(International News Service)
BUTLER, Pa., Mar. 12.—Postponement of the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline of Pittsburgh and former supplies director Bertram L. Succop had been granted today by Judge Thomas D. Finletter, until May 2, on the grounds that the additional time was necessary to select a capable jury.

The trial previously was scheduled to open here on Monday. Judge Finletter in an open session of court late yesterday held that a jury of 12 fair-minded men could not be chosen from a panel of 66 eligible veniremen in the face of a grand jury investigation into charges of attempts to "fix" those selected to try the indicted pair.

Ask For Delay
Counsel for the Kline-Succop defense appealed for the delay "until such time as the defendants can be tried and have their jury drawn from a panel that is wholly unaffected by what has taken place."

District Attorney Andrew T. Park did not protest the appeal for postponement and Judge Finletter moved the date back to May 2.

The decision of Judge Finletter automatically disposed of the venire summoned to sit in the Kline trial. A new panel will be drawn for service for Butler county's court calendar for the May session which is to include the Kline-Succop case.

POLLS ORDERED

International News Service Staff

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.—Modification of the new tax bill was planned today by bi-partisan leaders in charge of the measure to assure passage in the house by a big majority within 10 days.

With a few strokes of the pen—exempting processed foods and perhaps cheap clothing from the sales tax and addition of a few excise taxes—the leaders believe that they can dispel much of the bitter opposition.

Preparatory to reaching a final decision on changes in the $1,086,000,000 measure, both Democratic and Republican leaders ordered polls to determine the attitude of the house on the highly controversial sales tax feature.

Technical Victory.
Those in charge of the measure scored a technical victory when they forced opponents of the sales tax into the open with substitute tax levies.

The effect of the proposed substitutes, mostly some form of sales tax, was to create new opposition among the industries selected for specially heavy blows. It is this opposition that leaders count upon to bring the house into line for the sales tax as the least harmful to industry as a whole.

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Mar. 12.—Fire, which was discovered shortly before 8:30 o'clock this morning in the Chi Omega sorority house on Waugh avenue had gained such a start that despite the strenuous efforts of the fire department the large frame structure was gutted. Ten co-eds who roomed in the house, along with the patroness, lost most all of their clothing, as nothing was saved from the house. Loss on the house and contents is estimated at approximately $10,000, partially covered by insurance. None was hurt.

At the time that the fire was discovered, Miss Virginia Welch, of Crafton, was the only girl in the building. As she came from an upstairs room, she discovered that the downstairs was afire; rushed to the street and gave the alarm.

Firemen Respond
New Wilmington firemen were summoned, and answered quickly, but the fire spread rapidly through the first floor of the building, and within a short time the entire structure was doomed.

The girls who room in the sorority house along with the patroness, Mrs. Bertha Bay, who is an assistant professor in the economics department, were at class in the main building of the college a short distance away when the fire developed. They rushed from class to the burning structure, but when they

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. B. Comstock File Damage Suit In Erie Court

ARTHUR BARLETT
DEFENDANT IN SUIT

(Special To The News)
ERIE, Pa., Mar. 12.—Parents of a Westminister college student killed two years ago in an airplane crash in Lawrence county, today sought $10,000 damages for the loss of their son.

James B. and Maude E. Comstock of New Wilmington filed their suit in Erie court today. The suit is for the death of their son, Arthur Barlett, who was killed in a crash in Lawrence county, Pa., in 1930.

The damage claim against Barlett was on file in the local courts today.

Barlett, the parents claim, was only a student pilot when he took their son aloft in November of 1930.

They charge that he had no authority to leave the vicinity of the airport, let alone haul passengers.

That Barlett was flying at a low altitude and stunting when the tragedy occurred is also claimed by the New Wilmington couple.

The crash-up occurred the 29th of November at Edensburg, Lawrence county. Barlett suffered only minor injuries. The New Wilmington lad was killed almost instantly.

A Westminister college student at the time, the Comstock lad had gone for the ride when it was proffered free by the pilot, the parents say.

arrived the house was impossible of entrance, and nothing could be saved.

Origin Unkined has not been determined. The blaze appeared to come from a front room downstairs, when first seen. The students had been gone to classes for probably half an hour when the fire was discovered.

New Wilmington firemen succeeded in preventing any of the houses in the immediate vicinity from being damaged.

The home of H. G. Sharp was the one immediately adjoining. It was not damaged.

The sorority house is known as the "Prather House" in New Wilmington, and is under lease by Westminister college for the sorority headquarters. The furnishings in the building were owned by the college. The house was the property of Sarah Prather.

Girls In Sorority
Young ladies who were occupants of the house and who suffered the loss of most of their wardrobe were: Elizabeth and Janet Curtis, Carnegie, Pa.

Hazel Willwood, Crafton, Pa.
Jean Miller, Bradford, Pa.
Amy Jean Young, New Castle, Pa.
Margaret Sherbondy, Jamestown, Pa.

Virginia and Gretchen Welch, Crafton, Pa.
Ruth Wagoner, Sharon, Pa.
Annabell Stevenson, Bellevue, Pa.

The fire burned for several hours before it was totally extinguished. Part of the walls remain standing, but the structure was thoroughly gutted. Loss on the building was placed at about $5,500, while the loss on contents was approximately $4,000 according to estimates.

The co-eds who were made homeless by the fire will probably be temporarily housed in other sorority houses in town until new headquarters are secured.

TALBOT BILL IN HANDS OF STATE SUPREME COURT

the act, the noted constitutional pleader limited his discourse to three points.

They were: 1—Construction of the call of Gov. Gifford Pinchot for the special session; 2—The constitutional prohibition placed on state debts; 3—Propriety of the appropriation as such or as a debt.

Under the governor's call, the former senator argued, the subject before the legislature was the field of relief of the unemployed. Practically, he declared, the "poor" as mentioned in the Talbot Act, and the "unemployed" mentioned in the governor's message are synonymous.

Legislation passed in time of extraordinary stress, such as the present, he claimed, would cover one as well as the other. So holding, he claimed the bill came within scope of the governor's call.

No Violation.
He claimed the act was not a violation of the constitutional proviso forbidding appropriations for charitable and benevolent purposes or to specific groups, because it was an exercise of fundamental sovereignty of the state, caring for a statewide condition of persons not artificially created.

The same argument was his main discourse in discussing propriety of the legislature's action in making the appropriation.

The stability of the government is involved in the existing crisis and the relief fund is valid under the police powers, transcending constitutional prohibitions on appropriations, Pepper contended. He said:

"God knows this situation must be dealt with if this commonwealth is to be saved. It is not a question of whether there will be a balance in revenues, but what shall we do when these pitifully inadequate measures for relief are exhausted."

Disputes Question.
Pepper disputed the question advanced by Attorney General Schneider of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia to share in the fund because poor boards were abolished by law in their municipal boundaries. Pepper argued that poor boards were merged in welfare departments.

"Schneider's assertion that there are no revenues available for the $10,000 appropriation under the Talbot bill was disputed by Attorney R. Lawrence Coughlin, Luzerne county solicitor.

Relief Is Needed.
Representing the poor board of Luzerne county, one of the intervening parties in the original suit resulting in the supreme court hearing, Coughlin said there would be at least $11,000,000 surplus in state funds available at the end of the 1931-1932 biennium.

Coughlin continued:
"The real question is does the state recognize whether this emergency situation creates a condition likely to result in starvation, whether children are being raised under such circumstances that will make them unfit citizens and whether it can take fitting measures to preserve itself under the constitution."

SEARCH FOR BABY IS NOW CENTERING IN NEW YORK CITY

to spirit away the Lindbergh infant. Another of the five men is understood to be in prison elsewhere.

Identity of the Tombs prisoner was closely guarded. Joseph Fishman, deputy commissioner of corrections, declared that any premature information of this "clue" would "kill the effectiveness of our work."

Another development in New York City was a mysterious conference, reported scheduled for today in a mid-town hotel. According to this rumor—wholly without confirmation, however—representatives of the police department and an attorney said to represent Detroit gangsters were to be present.

Rumor Not Credited
Little credence was placed in a rumor that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the missing infant, would attend the conference.

Lindbergh, "still grumpy and still hopeful," is staying close to his home in Hopewell, where for days and nights he has been personally directing efforts of an army of private detectives and friends to find his child.

His wife, Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, was reported today to be bearing up bravely although in a run-down condition as a result of a severe cold and the ordeal she is undergoing.

The Lindberghs, advised from Hopewell say, are "just waiting, watching, waiting—and hoping."

Nothing in the way of real progress has been definitely disclosed to the press, despite the optimistic reports that have cropped up from time to time since the baby was stolen from his crib a week ago last Tuesday night.

Little Light Shed
TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 12.—In a formal statement this morning Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who the State police was now running down clues in "at least three states," but none has shed any further light on the Lindbergh baby kidnapping.

"The results of these investigations are not known," he said, "and will not be until the investigators communicate or return."

In his statement Col. Schwarzkopf said that the State police guarantees of confidence to all persons wishing to furnish information about the kidnapping did not carry with it a guarantee of immunity to the kidnapers.

"The matter of immunity is beyond our control," he said.

"Break" Seems Near
NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—The long-awaited "break" in the Lindbergh baby kidnapping appeared imminent today.

Contact with the kidnapers may be established at an extraordinary meeting here today between a lawyer representing Detroit gangsters, the chief advisers of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and probably a representative of police commissioner Mulrooney.

It was not learned whether Lindbergh himself would attend the reported conference.

However, Colonel Henry Breckinridge, his counsel and friend, early today left the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J., from which the infant was kidnapped nearly 11 days ago to come to New York for the conference.

The meeting, it was reported, was arranged independent of the police activities in the hunt for the kidnapers. It was described as an outgrowth of Lindbergh's own efforts to establish communication with the kidnapers and his pledge of immunity to them if they returned his 20-month-old son.

The station agent told the inquirer a New York train could be flagged at the station at 2:09 a. m. and 7 a. m.

The earlier train passed a short distance, then slowly backed up. No one boarded the train, however.

Who the Detroit gangsters or their affiliations were was not revealed.

Mrs. Culbertson Is Acquitted Of Killing Husband

Pittsburgh Woman Freed By Jury After Three-Hour Deliberation

HUSBAND KILLED DURING SCUFFLE

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Mar. 12.—Freed of murder charges in connection with the shooting of her husband last November, Mrs. Laverna Culbertson was back at her Mt. Lebanon home today, "glad it's all over" and anxious to pick up the broken threads of a once-peaceful life.

Shooting of Culbertson, in a struggle for possession of a shotgun, climaxed a gay weekend party at the Culbertson home.

Mrs. Culbertson was acquitted of murder charges by a jury of seven men and five women in the court of Judge Samuel Gardner late yesterday, after nearly three hours' deliberation.

The state had sought to prove her guilty of murder and to send her to a prison for life.

Sob Is Heard.
A sob broke Mrs. Culbertson's lips when the jury returned its verdict. Then she left the courtroom for the office of her chief counsel, Oliver K. Eaton.

There, her friends crowded about her to express their joy while the young society matron said only:

"I'm so tired, so glad it's all over." Mrs. Culbertson returned home late in the evening with her two sons. At home, she denied herself to visitors and would give no hint of her plans for the future.

Oak Street School Washington Program

Parent-Teacher Association Presents Interesting Program In School Friday

A most interesting Washington bi-centennial program was presented in the Oak street school Friday afternoon when the members of the Parent-Teacher association met with Mrs. Leonard Cramer presiding.

Miss Grace Eakin directed a period of appropriate songs, with the pupils of the sixth grade singing a group of patriotic numbers.

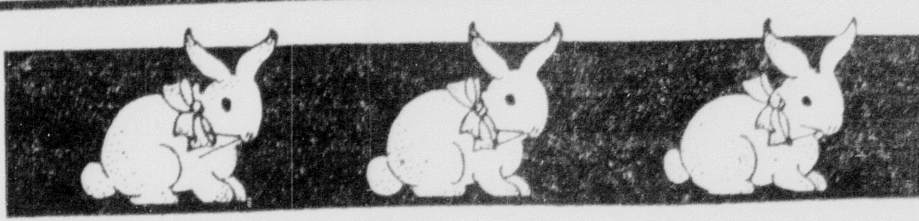

Dr. E. A. Crooks, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, was the guest speaker and he gave a splendid portrayal of the life of George Washington, stressing Washington the patriot, the courageous, the lover of law, and the man with a vision of a greater America.

The mothers' quartet sang two numbers, "Days of Long Ago" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," which were appreciatively received.

A series of short talks on P. T. A. subjects were then given, with Mrs. Grace Whitlatch speaking on "Reason for P. T. A.," Mrs. J. W. Anderson gave a historical sketch of the organization; Mrs. Charles Rick spoke on "Policies of the Association" and Mrs. William Kennedy gave an outline of the program of service.

"What the P. T. A. should do for the parent," was discussed by Miss Ina Rosenberg, with the response "What the P. T. A. Should Do for the Teacher," given by Mrs. J. Bert James. Miss Martha Muse discussed "What the P. T. A. Should Do for the Pupil."

Miss Iretta Dart, principal of the school, gave an interesting talk as the closing number of the program.

Hearing On Appeal Continued At Court

Attorney Absent In Case Of City Against Two Salesmen

Owing to the absence of an attorney for the Hoyt Products Company of Newark, N. J., the case of the City of New Castle against Wayne Bonnett and Leonard Stauffer, in which an appeal was taken from the decision of Mayor Charles B. Mayne was continued at court Friday afternoon. No definite date was set for hearing.

The case is one in which the salesman for the Hoyt Company, were arrested and fined under a city ordinance, for not having taken out a peddlers license to operate in New Castle.

Bonnett and Stauffer, after being assessed fines of $20 each, immediately entered an appeal. They claim that they were not peddling, as contemplated by the ordinance, but that they were taking orders, and having the goods delivered from a Hoyt warehouse in Youngstown. They claim the right to do this under the interstate commerce law, and allege that the city ordinance presumes to impose a tax on this law.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

ELECTION of William A. Irvin as president of the United State Steel Corporation is another striking instance of the romance of American business. Every boy born in this country is told that some day he may be President of the United States. Exceedingly few attain that wonderful distinction for the simple reason that we have but one President at a time and in our entire history we have had only a small number. But we have hundreds of executives of big business concerns, that it is amazing to note how many of them once come from the ranks. This is particularly noticeable in the very successful corporations which place a high value on trained and loyal organizations, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. Competent men are promoted from one position to another; and every such promotion is an incentive to every other man connected with the concern.

The records show that President Irvin became a telegrapher with the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1883 and after that clerk, assistant freight and ticket agent. His first taste of the steel business was as shipping clerk. From that he advanced from one department of the mill to another until he was made superintendent. At the end of twenty years he found himself vice president in charge of plant operations; and now, with thirty-five years of experience behind him, he is hailed as president of the greatest steel corporation in the world. This sounds like magic, but it is typical of American business. The secret of it is intelligent application and hard work. What could be more fitting than that a practical steel man with long years of mill experience should head the United States Steel Corporation? Here is a man who is equally at home with the grimy-faced men in the mills and the well-dressed men in the offices.

It is interesting to know that the new executive is a Pennsylvanian, having been born in Indiana. Like many another successful American boy he was given only a common school education. But—and this is highly significant—he added to it by attending night school while working during the day. The era of opportunity in the United States has not been destroyed by big business; on the contrary it seems to have been enlarged.

LINDY'S HOLD ON THE PEOPLE

One of the most amazing things in recent history is the way the tragic events of the last few days have demonstrated anew the tremendous hold that Colonel Lindbergh has on the American people.

That flight to Paris is a long way in the past now. Other great flights have been made since then, other sensations have come and gone, other heroes have arisen to have their day in the limelight and then fade out of the picture; but the peak on which that amazing flight landed Lindbergh has grown higher with the passing years.

Probably no other conceivable event short of the nation's entrance into a great war could have stirred the American people as deeply as the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby stirred it. During the past week it has been almost the only topic of conversation. You hear people discussing it on street cars and in buses; the waitress who gives you your sandwich in the restaurant, the boot black who shines your shoes, the acquaintance you meet on the street—all have wanted to know the latest news.

And this hasn't been merely an evidence for public desire for sensation. The loss of the child was a personal matter to almost everyone in the country. People did not simply feel that a horrible crime had been committed; they felt that their own deepest sympathies had been outraged, and in a very real way they suffered with Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Many times in the past the public has shown how greatly it cherishes its most famous aviator. Now, in the time of his greatest sorrow, it has revealed the full extent of the way in which it has made him its own. Henceforth, apparently, we have an unofficial first citizen whose status cannot change; and in his charming wife, we have an unofficial, deeply loved first lady.

FORD A LEADING DRY

"Prohibition is an industrial necessity," said Henry Ford not long ago. Coming from the champion of high wages and one of the boldest business leaders in America, this simple statement is a hammer-blow for truth.

Sometimes the zeal for this great reform seems lodged entirely with ordinary folk, the millions of us who, whatever our effectiveness, do not pretend to be national figures. It helps tremendously when one of the highest and most respected men in America re-avows his flat-footed stand with the common people.

The fact that his contemplated purchases in other parts of the United States will give work to 300,000 additional men places him first among all American industrialists in his war on unemployment.

If there is any man in the United States who knows industrial conditions it is Henry Ford. He is getting to be an old man, and his experience with labor reaches back into the years when Monday was an ineffective day in the shops. A large proportion of the men would turn up missing, and some of those who came to work had headaches and shaky nerves. Ford had to pay for those bad habits, and he got tired of it. But when the country and his plants went on a dry basis, he made more money, and let the employees share in the extra profits.

The President, members of Congress, and all State Legislators, do not need to feel that in their dry stands they have behind them nothing but some lobbyists and retired dyspeptics. Henry Ford is the leading business-man dry, since our beloved Edison passed on, but he has with him thousands of other keen business men, who know they can make more money in useful and productive lines, in the prohibition laws stand. These business men also know that they can afford to treat their employees better if they do not have to write off losses due to lowered efficiency.

The best argument against race suicide is that your very next child may be a film wonder.

It is especially difficult to control a temper that faces an unarmed man 40 pounds lighter.

Once the capitalistic system is gone the world will be quieter. There won't be any dinner bells.

Doctors who advise folks how to live long probably include in the instructions "stay off the highways."

All Of Us

I Thought I Could
Like Many Other Folk

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I thought I could. I was sure I had a remedy that would cure ANYBODY'S colds. Not my own colds, of course, for the very good reason that I never had any. Cold viruses took one look at me and wandered away. Or they attacked me and my white corpuscles threw them for heavy losses. So I didn't need a sure cure for a cold, but anybody else that didn't take advantage of my sure cure was foolish, at least. My cure was bicarbonate of soda taken every half hour or so in a glass of water. Not pleasant to take but it did cure colds. It would cure ANY cold. I knew a woman who was always able to beat off her colds with soda. It never failed her. She did it, any anybody could. I was sure of that, and I made myself a special lobbyist for bicarbonate of soda. Told everybody about it. Gave them special directions. Sneered at friends if they wouldn't take my advice. Told them they deserved to have colds. If they tried the remedy and then reported it hadn't worked, I told them they hadn't USED enough. You couldn't fool ME. I KNEW bicarbonate of soda would prevent or cure ANY cold. And then I got a cold. I felt it coming on, and dove for the bicarbonate of soda. I took my spoonful every half hour, at the office, at home, everywhere. And still the cold came on. Finally it was triumphant. I had a cold. A cold had ME. I coughed, sneezed, hacked, cleared my throat, blew my nose, was a menace to society—and a living example of the failure of my pet remedy for colds.

And there I was—stripped of my pet propaganda. The soda that cured one person wouldn't work for everybody, and it didn't work for me. Perhaps I didn't take enough. Maybe I didn't start soon enough. Possibly I didn't have the right sort of cold. Whatever the excuse I was a reformer, a public benefactor, completely blown up.

I had had a remedy for the ills that other people suffer, but finally I had to admit it wouldn't work on ME. It worked on some, but not on everybody. I wasn't a faker. I was just a fellow who thought he knew when he really didn't know. I was just like a lot of other people, who tell other people exactly what to do, and can't do it themselves. I was like all those others who can give you advice, but can't give you anything else.

And I wonder how many other people have pet remedies that might work for some, but will not work for all—and that they've never thought of trying on themselves?

THE GRACES
A blazing fire in winter, and a garden in the spring.
A bed of pansy blossoms and a tree where robins sing.
Some trinkets in the corner of the little home we keep
A few brave years of laughter and the tears that all must weep.
'Tis only these we gather through the time we have to live
As soon as we shall discover these are all that life can give.

Though fame and wealth may lure us though both of them we gain
The home must ring with laughter or all the rest in vain.
And love must bid us welcome when all the struggle's done
Or paltry are the prizes our strength and skill have won.
And peace of mind must shield us from pangs of sharp regret
Or an instrument of torture will be anything we get.

So let's give some thought to tulips and the garden in the spring.
Let's take the time to listen when the robin renews his song.
Let's plan the home for laughter, and let's not forget to keep
The faith we shall be needing when it's time for us to weep.
For if there be no friendship, and loved ones cease to smile,
Then neither fame nor fortune for long can be worth while.

BUT WHY GIVE PART OF YOUR LITTLE TO BEGGARS WHO OWN APARTMENT HOUSES?

You may not be interested in statecraft or international banking, but you are interested in taxes. When statesmen renew their propaganda for the "adjustment of war debts," they are planning a raid on your pocketbook.

And the only way you can protect yourself is by learning the truth and refusing to be victimized by pretense and hypocrisy.

Do you know how the war debts affect your pocketbook? During the great war, Europe needed billions of dollars with which to buy supplies.

Her statesmen appealed to the American government. But the American government had no such sums to lend. The only way to get the money was to borrow it from the American people.

This the government did, giving the people bonds as a pledge of repayment.

Now the government faces the task of redeeming these bonds and turning the people's money.

How can it be done? There are but two ways: The money must be got from the European nations to which it was loaned, or the American government must tax its own people to get the money with which to repay them.

If Europe doesn't pay, you must. That is the whole story. You are told that the debt should be cancelled—that is taken out of your pocket instead of the European taxpayer's—because Europe is unable to pay.

You are told that debt payments to America impoverish the English taxpayer and burden France—poor, unselfish, France—beyond endurance.

There is not a word of truth in it. The English tax-payer is not affected in the slightest degree by debt payments to America. Every cent England pays to America is collected from other nations.

And the money France pays each year is less than the sum American tourists spend in France.

France is the richest nation in the world, with twice the gold per capita that America has. Why should the American tax himself to pay himself—why should pity make him so simple—when the money England pays is not provided by the English tax-payer and the money France pays is provided by the American tourists?

Why give alms to a man richer than you are?

Swift And Drastic Justice Demanded For All Kidnapers

Abduction Of Lindbergh Child Serves To Arouse Nationwide Feeling That All Forms Of Racketeering Must Be Curbed

Intermixed with the nation's expressions of sympathy with the parents of the twenty-months-old Lindbergh baby, kidnaped from his crib and of outrage at the crime, is a general and bitter denunciation of criminal conditions which made it possible and a universal demand for swifter and surer justice in dealing with racketeers and racketeering, hoodlumism, etc., in all its forms. It is felt that this particular crime is one against the entire nation since the baby was looked upon as the child of the people, and the abduction involving so prominent a family is viewed as a flagrant defiance of society and an indication of the size to which the spirit of lawlessness has grown.

That all have been moved by the kidnapping is attested by the BOSTON TRANSCRIPT, "not just because he is the Lindbergh's baby, but because he is everybody's baby. The universality of this sentiment," continues The Transcript, "lies at the bottom of the deep shudder of resentment that has passed over the country. Who can blame, who shall even appraise, the general desire that the outrage, as an outrage against humanity, shall ultimately be atoned for?"

The OMAHA WORLD-HERALD points out that "the child of modern America's greatest romance is the child of the nation," and the BOISE IDAHO STATESMAN declares: "Practically every man, woman and child in America felt that the child belonged partly to each of them. In all history, few babies have possessed the well-wishes of as many individuals in all walks of life."

"The instant and intense outcry of the American people," says the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, "was inspired in part by sympathy for the parents of the child, and in perhaps greater degree by a sense of outrage at the crime as the latest manifestation of the spirit of lawlessness that has prevailed in this country so flagrantly for several years." As to the remedy for such a condition, The Star feels that it "is not to be found in stiffer punishments but in surer punishments," and expresses the hope that this present nationwide protest may cause the immediate reformation of the trial and punishment system of the country to the end that American civilization will not degenerate into barbarism.

The SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS similarly sees this crime as due to "the breakdown of the law," while the ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION offers the comment: "Our tangle of conflicting jurisdictions, our sometimes comic sheriffs representing the law in the thousands of separate counties, the dominance of partisan politics in selecting prosecutors, and even judges—all these make a sort of jungle in which criminals can hide and effective law enforcement is hampered at every turn. If anything can stir us to clear away this tangle, this case should."

The BUFFALO EVENING NEWS declares: "The medieval idea of protecting the citizens from the industries of the trial and punishment system of authority has become considerably less important to modern Americans than the protection of citizens from the atrocities of criminals who defy authority."

But others see not the law enforcement agencies but the people themselves as responsible for the crime. "But why should America be stunned?" asks the MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL. "Is not the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, or some other baby equally well known, the logical, almost predictable, result of the country's tolerance of white-collared hoodlumism in the last half dozen years?"

So long as a large segment of society makes mistakes, if not outright heroes, of racketeers, so long will there be danger for babies." The MIAMI DAILY NEWS voices the query: "Will we be frank enough to admit that we as citizens are to blame for the condition? The power of government, of organized society, is placed in our hands, and if we allow it to be usurped by unscrupulous, greedy politicians, we have placed the weapon in the hands of the criminal who now defies us."

Planning and execution of the crime was the most daring stroke of recent criminology, and it may well prove to be the most costly to those who live by crime," declares the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, stating as to kidnapping: "If man is capable of a more contemptible act, it has not yet been revealed."

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS asserts: "The entire country is now on edge on the kidnapping and fight this war to a finish. The challenge of the terrorists in the Lindbergh case is a grave warning, and summons to determined action." The ROANOKE-TIMES exclaims: "Kidnaping must stop. On that the American people are agreed."

THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, "the first hope of everyone is that the stolen baby will be returned in safety to its agonized parents. The next is that the States and the Nation will rise up and smite the kidnapping racket to the dust, even if every person who attempts this vile business is to be forever removed from human society."

As to the result of the crime, the CHARLOTTE OBSERVER asserts: "It serves to impress upon the courts of the land the necessity for taking off the gloves and handing crimes of all kinds, not as subversive would have it, but in the light of the law." The BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD suggests that there will be a "girding of loins in every quarter, while the SALT LAKE DESERT

There's too many people in this country that want to be on the winning side regardless of anything in the law."

Nothing sounds as good as your wife's singing, whether she knows or not.

DEALING WITH EMPLOYEES

Isn't it possible, Mr. Boss, that in your method of dealing with your employees, you completely unnerve them and make them so they are incapable of doing their best work?

By the strictness of your rules, the manner in which you censure them for errors, the unwarranted attacks you make on them for slight mistakes, you may make them more likely to fail in their work to rectify mistakes.

It takes thoughtful consideration to do good work.

This cannot exist when the nervous system is at high tension. Naturally nervous persons can control themselves under ordinary circumstances but to be harassed is to get beyond control.

Jobs are hard to procure at present and those who are employed are anxious enough to retain their places, so it is easy to arouse an employee to the point where he is not in full control of his mind.

There is great uneasiness among those who cause their superiors to be annoyed.

Unusual conditions of today should convince the employer that the best way to deal with his men is to give them credit at least for their efforts.

If errors are made and work not up to standard, in most cases it is not through carelessness or lack of interest.

police and legislators are through with this case, kidnapping will have lost a lot of its attractiveness.

In the discussions of the direction in which such remedial steps should be taken and what definite action will result in a curbing of crime, there are many suggestions, with a divergence of opinion as to where the cause and cure lies. "The crime cannot be punished too severely" in the judgment of the NEW CASTLE PA. NEWS, and the SCHENECTADY GAZETTE declares: "We feel more and more strongly the necessity for making punishment for this crime so swift and severe that few will run the risk."

"It would seem that the machinery for catching the kidnaper should be made to operate quickly over a wide area, instead of a local one," advises the COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL, but the BALTIMORE EVENING SUN warns that a Federal law "can do no good and might do harm." The LYNCHBURG NEWS asserts: "There should be a Federal law to cover cases where State lines are crossed, and in both State and Federal laws death should be the penalty." The ASBURY PARK PRESS is among the other papers demanding the death penalty, but the suggestion that it may prove dangerous to the kidnapped children to make the penalty too severe is advanced by a number of dailies, among them the YOUNGSTOWN VINDICATOR and the TORONTO (ONT.) STAR. The TOLEDO BLADE declares: "We need, not more laws, but faster and more thoroughgoing law enforcement. How many of the 2,500 abductions in the United States in the last two years would have been planned and executed if the plotters could have been convinced in advance that each and every one of them, or most of them, would serve even ten years in prison."

While the NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE feels that "any measure strengthening local, State and national protection may deserve enactment and test," the ANN ARBOR DAILY NEWS concludes: "The law was much too active in the Lindbergh case. Its far-flung dragnet was a liability instead of an asset. It was powerless to do anything but harm."

Viewing the Lindbergh kidnapping in its relation to crime as a whole, the AKRON BEACON JOURNAL comments: "By repealing the laws which protect these crooks and licensing the beverage traffic, the government would destroy the outlaw gangs overnight. * * * Until this is done, 'putting the teeth into laws' against kidnapping and related crimes is only trimming the branches of the tree of organized crime instead of destroying it at its roots."

Then, too, old-fashioned parents controlled their children better because they had more sense than the children.

Bessemer Fish Fry Is Enjoyable Event

Fish Fry Held Friday Night
By Bessemer Rod And

Report 133 Members Present
—E. O. Koonse Principal Speaker

Fish, fish, and more fish was the main forte at Bessemer High School last night as 133 members of the Bessemer Rod and Gun Club held their long-looked-forward-to fish fry and stag party. The event was a most enjoyable one. Another such supper would find an even larger attendance.

With the delightful fish dinner over the way, the meeting was presided over by Chairman Paul Kanengeiser, who after a few introductory remarks read a communication from the Federal government regarding fish.

James R. Chaney, Executive Secretary of the club gave the composite scores of all the shoots held by the club to date and many increases of marksmanship were revealed. Paul Kanengeiser then told a story that had the gathering in an uproar.

Koonse Is Speaker
The principal speaker of the evening was E. O. Koonse of New Castle, former deputy fish warden of Lawrence County. Mr. Koonse gave an interesting talk, describing to the members of the club the workings and facts behind the state hatcheries and nurseries where the game and fish is raised on a whole sale basis, for distribution in the woods. Mr. Koonse's talk was very interesting and instructful to the club members.

C. E. Turner of Ellwood City, the man who cooked the fish for the supper, was introduced and received a round applause from the crowd for his efforts in giving them such a tasty dinner.

Mr. Johnson and his committee were given a vote of thanks for their work in making the Fish Fry such a big success. The meeting adjourned at a very late hour. Archie Shoup in making a report of the affair today waxed enthusiastic for another such meeting and fish fry in the very near future.

S. L. CLUB

A delightful evening of music, dancing and cards was enjoyed Friday evening by a group of young people when Miss Mary Elizabeth Suber, Bell avenue, entertained the members of the S. L. club and their friends at a St. Patrick party. At eleven thirty the hostess, mother, Mrs. E. J. Suber, invited the group to the dining room, where places were marked for fourteen. All appointments were carried out in green and white and on the center of the table was a beautiful swan bowl filled with flowers, and tall green tapers burned at the sides. A delicious menu was served, with the predominating colors carried out in the tones of the season.

The special guests were Robert Alley, Heber Baldwin, Chester Bidle, Tom Gettings, Robert Jenkins and Jack Mechlign.

Miss Nell Horton, Greenwood avenue, will be hostess to the girls on April 14.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Paul Fay entertained Friday evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Clarence Spencer, Wilmington avenue in honor of the twenty-fifth birthday of her husband. Fourteen couples were in attendance. ## Grand Jury Finds Rooms Occupied By Poor Dept. Unfit

However, No Recommendation Made As To How They Can Be Made Any Better

In presentations made by the county grand jury at the conclusion of their work Friday afternoon, the poor director's office was characterized as a "disgrace to Lawrence county, and we recommend steps be taken to correct it."

Just what the grand jury meant by the recommendation is not clear to the county commissioners and poor director. It is presumed, however, that it had reference to the arrangement of the building in which the poor director's office is located.

There is no room for the poor director's office in the courthouse, and a building immediately across from the jail has been rented for the purpose. This building has a center hall. In the southeast corner the office where the clerical work is done is located.

Immediately back of it are two rooms. Applicants for aid must pass through the hall to these back rooms, where they await their turn to get into the office. There is a door leading from these rooms to the front office. As fast as applicants are taken care of, a bell is rung and another applicant is admitted.

The waiting rooms are often very much crowded, so that it is practically impossible, with the limited room, to attempt to seat the applicants. With so many applicants gathered in a room and poorly ventilated, it is naturally not a very pleasant place.

The county commissioners say that they know that it is not very well adapted to the needs of the situation, but it has been the best that they have been able to get. They say that if the grand jury had in mind any constructive recommendation they would be glad to carry it out.

The jury also reported that the county home and the jail had been visited and they were found in good condition.

Regarding the courthouse the jury says: "we feel the need of changes, but this jury does not have the hardihood to make any recommendations at this time."

SUIT TO COLLECT ON FLORIDA NOTES

The Burns Mortgage Company, use of Ruth V. Greenberg, has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Oliver Hoch, to collect $2500, with interest from June 1, 1925 at 8 per cent.

The suit is based on two notes each for $1250, given by Hoch to the Tatum Holding Company at Miami, Florida. The notes were assigned to A. G. Veach, then by Veach to the Burns mortgage company, and finally by the mortgage company to Ruth V. Greenberg.

The statement says that 8 per cent is not usurious interest in Florida, where interest up to 10 per cent is allowed by law.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Can Ideals Be Taught In The Home

Dr. Myers Avers Children Breathe In Their Morals

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D., Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

Can we hope to teach ideals in the home? To be sure we can. We teach them whether we know we are doing so or not. Our children absorb them as they breathe the air or take food. We can make our teaching more effective by a conscious purpose provided what we teach echoes what we do.

Where did you and I get our ideas of what we consider right or wrong? A few of them we may have constructed out of our efforts at reasoning; but most of them, like Topsy, "grew."

In our early childhood we learned that certain things were wrong because those whom we loved and who loved us did or did not do them, and led us to doing them or from doing them. Some things we were not allowed to do. If our forbiddings were effectual they became a part of our habits.

Those things from which we consistently got dissatisfaction, or from which we rarely or never enjoyed satisfaction, we tended not to do again, whereas we came to do repeatedly therefore habitually, what promised always or very often pleasure.

If what we were told constantly was right we rarely or never did, and if that we constantly were told was wrong we always or very often did, the repeated ideal weakened into mere words. Not only do we come not to cherish an ideal we have not had practice in approaching with satisfaction, but we actually may spurn it with contempt.

The most successful parents train the little child in doing as a matter of habit many things which they consider good, and train him in avoiding habitually many things they consider wrong, long before the child can see the reason for doing or avoiding. Upon these habits it is relatively easy to build ideals. The ideals glorify the habits reinforcing them.

But suppose we wait, as some have taught, until the child can reason about the ideal first, to cultivate the necessary habits. Upon what, then, are we going to build? The foundation of good character construction is right habits. Out of these habits and upon them we can build ideals. Through these ideals we can motivate the furtherance of similar good habits.

Our success in building habits, surely our success in reinforcing them by ideals and erecting added habits to be lifted into more ideals and loftier ones, will depend upon our ability to understand the child and to win his genuine, continuous esteem and, therefore, his co-operation. We like our children, tend to accept the ideals of those we regard most highly. If we parents can earn the honest admiration of our children as they grow and develop, we can hope for them to accept our ideals, making them their own. (Some of us may wish at times they would not.)

We may, however, have competition in companions whom our children admire who have different habits, different ideals from ours. Here again the weight of our influence will depend upon the quality of habits we have cultivated in our children and the closeness of their habits to the ideals they observe in us.

Our children need parents who lead good lives and who also cultivate happily in their children good habits. Not enough for us parents to be good; we must also be good to our children. Hardly can we hope to cultivate in our children ideals higher than our own. But even good individual lives in parents will not assure their being good parents. We must have both elements to get best results. To this end all of us parents are on trial.

Six Men Charged With Kidnaping In Chicago Held Under Heavy Bonds

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Mar. 12.—Six men charged with kidnaping suffered Friday from the reaction following the Lindbergh kidnaping.

When they were arraigned before Judge John Prystalski this afternoon prosecutors asked for a bond of $150,000 for Charlie "Bust" Brown recently returned from New York. Brown's counsel declared a sum "preposterous" but the judge set the bond at $75,000.

Earlier Louis "Two Gun" Alterio, who was brought here from Colorado, was released on a bond of $50,000. Alterio and Brown, with Pinera, were charged with the kidnaping of Edward Dobkin, commission gambler.

John Pinera, William Thomas, Edward Finnen and former state attorney Ward Swallow were arraigned for the kidnaping of Mrs. Georgia Gehl. Trial was set for April 4. Alterio, Brown, Pinera and Thomas, also involved in the Dobkin case, will face trial after the completion of the Gehl case.

When Grandpa Was a Boy

"Way back when" in the seventies and eighties, brick was the favorite paving material. Many old brick streets are still in use. They're bumpy now—but what could you expect after 40 or 50 years. Nowadays, brick is still a favorite paving material (that's why we have nine plants) and engineers know how to lay a brick surfaced pavement that makes a Model T ride like a Cadillac. Modern brick-surfaced pavements require very little upkeep so they're as easy on the taxpayer's pocketbook as they are on the wheels.

Council Receives 'Demands' From Lewis And Committee

Following a meeting in South Jefferson street on Friday afternoon, a delegation of "unemployed" went to the city hall, where George Lewis, secretary of the Unemployed Council of the city, addressed the mayor and council and presented a list of the demands of the Unemployed Council for relief at the present time.

Included in the demands were the following: $5 cash weekly for families of unemployed workers with $1 added for each dependent; $3 cash weekly for all single unemployed workers, either sex above the age of 18.

Among the demands was one for 40 cents an hour for eight-hour day on city work to be paid in cash; free hot lunches in schools, shoes and clothing to be furnished all school children of unemployed and part-time workers.

Another demand was free medical and dental treatment and also free gas, light and water for part-time and unemployed workers and their families.

Received in Council Chamber. When the delegation reached city hall, Lewis and a committee of ten went to the city council chamber, where the mayor and councilmen were in their seats, the meeting being an informal session.

Mayor Charles B. Mayne addressed Mr. Lewis, stating: "Mr. Lewis, do you have some business to transact with council? If so we are ready to hear you."

Lewis responded to the effect that city officials had been invited to the public meeting, had not attended and the committee and he had come to the building to present demands.

The demands, as in the foregoing were presented. Lewis enlarged upon them. He said the papers he had for council contained specific cases which could be verified upon inquiry.

He called the baskets of food distributed "six-bit baskets."

Lewis criticized the American Legion, asking: "What is the American Legion doing?" then declared: "Driving workers down."

"What about the Pymatuning job? What about the Pittsburgh plan? What about the Murray plan? What have you done?" he asked council.

"Nothing," he declared, "except to meet Sunday school classes."

"Take care of the American working class," Lewis demanded.

He alleged that the "system" is wrong, then shouted: "If you can't do the job get out and let someone do the job who can."

Lewis sat down. Mayor Mayne rose.

Mayor Replies. "Has anyone else got anything else to say?" the mayor inquired.

No response was made.

The mayor arose, looked Lewis in the eye then said:

"This is not a Quakers' meeting. I am not as meek as the other members. I'm here as the mayor of the city and not here to listen to lies and insults. When I cannot do the job I will not get out for a man like you and you can put that in your pipe and smoke it."

The mayor said Lewis lied when he called the baskets of food furnished ready-made "six-bit baskets." He said the men were getting the baskets of food because they want to work.

"They are not like you," Mayne said to Lewis. "Those men are not in your class. They are honest-to-God men."

"If some of these men are for you, it will not stop me from telling them and you, what you are."

"You never fed anyone. I've dug deep and I do not intend to have a — whelp like you tell me what to do."

"Why in — don't you do something? Don't think I am afraid of you," said Mayne.

"I'm willing to meet you any time or any place, even in a dark room," shouted Lewis.

Lewis was admonished to be quiet and let the mayor finish, as he had the chair.

"I came here to present these demands in a parliamentary manner," Lewis shouted.

"I call a point of order. He must keep still until he is called to speak," said Councilman Hoyland, referring to Lewis.

"If you want to stay here, keep your mouth shut," the mayor exclaimed to Lewis. "I'm running this meeting. I did not interfere with you when you were speaking at the morning lot. Now don't interfere with me."

"You have lied about me. You came into my office, sat across the table and you told me I couldn't put you out. You went out! And then you lied! You said I had to have a policeman —"

Lewis shouted something again.

"Sit down or out you go!" the mayor declared and when Lewis refused to remain silent and interrupted Mayne, the mayor left his desk and hurried to Lewis as Policeman Robert Latera and "Jobey" Thomas stepped forward, took Lewis by the arm and escorted him from the building.

Outside, Lewis stopped and addressed the crowd. He said he was "forced" from the building and they would meet again.

"Better move on," said Policeman Thomas Jones to Lewis. The latter did as directed. The crowd melted away.

Armed Guards Protect Movie Children

Lesson Learned From Lindbergh Case Starts Wave of Anti-Kidnaping Precautions. College Athletes Employed As Guards for Society Children.

The pathetic spectacle of a nation's helplessness following the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby indicates that the only defense against this type of crime is to lock the stable before the theft. Accordingly, many movie celebrities of Hollywood, whose fabulous salaries make them potential targets for the art of the extortionist, are taking elaborate precautions to protect their children. Ann Harding, noted stage and screen star, was the recipient of a note of "friendly warning," telling her that her daughter, Jane, was about to be kidnaped. Miss Harding immediately doubled the force of armed guards that already protected her home. The child is now kept under constant vigilance. The home of Harold Lloyd is similarly protected and his three children, Gloria, Peggy and Buddy, are never out of sight of quick-trigger guards. But it is not only in Hollywood that such precautions are being taken. Gene Tunney has applied for police protection for his child, although it is a brave kidnaper who would take any liberties with the child of the former heavyweight champion of the world. Residents in the exclusive districts of Park and Fifth Avenues, too, are taking precautions by employing college athletes to protect their children while outside their homes. Already many students of Columbia University are availing themselves of this method of paying their expenses through college. Above is Cliff Montgomery, of Columbia's grid squad, who is one of the collegians to adopt this congenial employment.

Zero Hour Approaches for "Bluebeard"

Denied a review of his case by the State Supreme Court of West Virginia, Harry F. Powers, called the "West Virginia Bluebird," will hang on March 18th, failing intervention by the Governor, which is very unlikely. Powers was sentenced for the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, of Northboro, Mass., whom he enticed from her home with a promise of marriage. Powers was also under indictment for the murder of Mrs. Aste Buick, of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three children. Under the alias of Cornelius O. Pierson, Powers had lured them from their home. Their bodies were later found buried under the floor of Powers' garage at Clarksburg. The condemned man seems resigned to his fate.

This photo shows how the well-trained Japanese invaders of Shanghai overcame some of the difficulties that faced them in their offensive against the Chinese. This photo was made during the recent Japanese drive on the Chapei-Woo-ung line and shows Jap troops using boats made of grass and reeds to ford a stream near Yangtzu Poo, a suburb of Shanghai which was the scene of some of the fiercest fighting. Latest reports from the war zone show indications of an early peace, Japan having at last agreed to arbitration by the League of Nations. As China is also willing, peace seems assured.

It's got to be good to be ADVERTISED

All the king's horses . . . and all the king's men can't make a success out of a bad product. No amount of advertising will create a market for it. The more it's advertised, the more its defects become known.

But a good product well advertised grows as swiftly and naturally as a healthy plant. People try it and like it. They tell others. They like it. Soon that product is found everywhere . . . and its name, spread abroad by advertising, is on every tongue.

When you see something widely and consistently advertised, you can be pretty sure it's well worth having. If it weren't . . . if it didn't represent an honest and worthy value . . . the maker couldn't afford to advertise it.

Look over the advertisements in this paper. Some of these names you know. Others perhaps are newcomers, potential friends bringing some new comfort or convenience. But all are entitled to your trust . . . all are here because they have something real to contribute to your advantage . . . your service . . . your happiness.

IMPORTANT

When you ask for a product by name, as a result of advertising, do not accept a substitute—substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

This picture gives an idea of the severity that marked the arrival of King Winter in Maryland. A terrific snowstorm that uprooted trees and tore down telegraph wires dislocated traffic in many parts of the State. Photo shows two of the many automobile victims of the unusual weather. These cars were snowbound, frozen and abandoned on Frederick Pike, near Lisbon. All westbound traffic was halted beyond this point.

Three of the twenty-five men held in connection with the fatal riots at the plant of the Ford Motor Company, at Dearborn, Mich., are shown as they were taken from the court at Detroit after a preliminary examination had been held to determine who is at fault. Four deaths resulted from the riot, which is said to have been inspired by Communist agitators.

HIGHLIGHTS OF HISTORY

George Washington
No. 24. The French Warned

ON JULY 8, 1755, AN INDIAN RUNNER DASHED INTO FORT DUQUESNE WITH THE DISQUIETING NEWS THAT THE BRITISH GENERAL BRADDOCK, WITH MANY MEN AND GUNS, WAS COMING TO ATTACK THE POST.

THE LITTLE FRENCH GARRISON WAS GREATLY ALARMED AND CONTRECOEUR, THE COMMANDANT, CONVINCED THAT THE UNFINISHED WALLS OF DUQUESNE COULD NOT WITHSTAND BRADDOCK'S ARTILLERY, CONSIDERED RETREATING TO VENANGO.

BUT YOUNG CAPTAIN BEAUJEU, A BOLD SPIRIT, PERSUADED HIS SUPERIOR TO HOLD THE FORT AND VOLUNTEERED TO LEAD A PARTY OF FRENCH AND INDIANS TO AMBUSH THE ENGLISH AS THEY MARCHED THROUGH THE FOREST.

BEAUJEU WAS CONFIDENT THE BRITISH REGULARS COULD NOT FIGHT IN THE WOODS. AT THAT VERY MOMENT BRADDOCK'S RED COATS WERE FLOUNDERING ALONG THE TRAIL, STRIVING VAINLY TO PRESERVE THEIR STIFF MARCHING FORMATION.

New Wilmington-Shenango In Finals Tonight

Plaingrove Will Play Princeton

Finals Tonight In Class B and C School Tournery At Westminster

EXCITING GAME PLAYED FRIDAY

New Wilmington High will play Shenango High tonight for the Class B Lawrence County Schoolboy championship, and Princeton will play Plain Grove High for the County Class C title. The games will be played at Westminster College gym at New Wilmington and will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Shenango Ahead

Both New Wilmington and Shenango waded through a lot of fine opposition to reach the final stage. Last night Shenango High just barely managed to nose out a fast East Brook team 14 to 13. The game was close right up until the gun boomed. McConnell of the East Brook team had a chance to win the game in the final second of play, but fate was against him. The ball hopped around the rim of the basket for a few turns and then failed to drop through just as the gun sounded. Shenango High with a clever combination earned the right to meet the strong New Wilmington team. Craig, Weir and Polenk kept the Shenango team in the race with fine exhibitions of basketball.

For the East Brook team the playing of Schuller, Rung and McConnell featured. East Brook had a chance to win the game on the foul line, but failed to make eight tries. The score at the half was 10 to 8 Shenango.

Sidelights On Tournery Games

The Mt. Jackson student band—a very good one for a small high school—enlivened fans on the opening night of the tournament.

The entire varsity basketball squad of Westminster college attended the games the first two nights. The contrast between the Titans and the small high school performers in size was remarkable.

Members of the Westminster athletic council, who met in the gymnasium office on Wednesday night, were interested spectators at the first contests in the tournament.

The silver loving cup, donated by Westminster college, to be awarded the winner of the tournament is on display in the window of the James A. Pitzer store, New Wilmington.

Officials Waddington and Hoskins have been doing an excellent piece of work with their whistles. They have never allowed the play to become rough, make the players obey all the technical rules, but are ever watchful for injuries. They have called time out for players on a number of occasions. A tournament should, after all, be run with a maximum of safety for the boys competing, and Waddington and Hoskins are helping in this respect.

There are all sizes, shapes and kinds of basketball coaches in the county schools. There are some who are a little more than five feet tall. There are tall, thin fellows who chew gum and wear "iron" hats. There are calm, good-looking men. But they are all good sports, and there has been no outburst of criticism of officials during the tournament.

New Wilmington high, with a good team, was kept busy every minute to defeat Union high, a well-drilled five. New Wilmington attracted a banner crowd on Thursday night, and will help pack the gymnasium tonight for the finals.

Chesler Waddington and Hoskins, officials, and some members of the Westminster basketball squad, will unite in selecting an all-tournament team following the final games tonight.

COLLEGE BOXERS TOURNAMENT TO START MARCH 18

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Mar. 12.—The first annual tournament of the newly-formed Intercollegiate Boxing Conference will be held in the gymnasium of Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh on Friday and Saturday, March 18 and 19.

With seven universities and colleges aligned with the conference, some of the finest college ring talent in the country will appear in the coming tournament bouts. The conference members are Temple University, Carnegie Tech, W. & J., West Virginia university, University of Pittsburgh, Bucknell university and Duquesne university.

The conference rules provide for the coach of each team to rate his boxers in the order of their ability, after which the executive committee, composed of E. R. Yeomans of Temple, Clarence Grondel of Carnegie Tech and W. D. Harrison of Pitt, select the four best men in each class.

The rating has been completed, and a field of 27 star boxers will start the competitions at 8 o'clock on Friday evening. There will be three bouts in each class, with the semi-finals on Friday and the finals on Saturday.

Balanced Aggregation.

Temple's well-balanced aggregation has drawn five men in the meet, West Virginia, Carnegie, Pitt and Bucknell four each and Duquesne and W. & J. three each.

The men who will compete here are as follows: Temple—Captain Kutcher, D'Alessandro, Eschman, Beloff and Meli; West Virginia—Captain Hawkins, Neely, Hamilton and Voorhees; Carnegie Tech—Captain Craig, Waldron, Wertz and Helmers; Pitt—Siegel, Schriener, Rubbo and Schimpf; Bucknell—Russo, Captain Boerner, Terpening and Ku-back; W. & J.—Demedowicz, Morrisey and Osborne; Duquesne—Ver-nacini, Moore and Vitulla.

Gold and silver medals will be provided for winners and runners-up respectively, and City Councilman Henry Little will present the team champion with a cup.

The coaches and managers will meet March 18 to draw and complete the arrangements for the meet which promises to attract a capacity crowd for both nights.

During the tournament, the representatives of the various schools will meet to determine the site of next year's matches.

FRENCH NET STAR SUBMITS ADVICE

U. S. Can Enter Meet Play With Maximum Of Chances

Henri Cochet is the latest to advise the U. S. Lawn Tennis association how the United States can win the Davis cup when action starts this summer.

In the current issue of "Tennis," official publication of the association, the French star presents five suggestions that he believes, if pursued, will send the Yankee team into the conflict with the maximum of chances.

The suggestions follow:

1—Take part in the championship of France.

2—Outside of Wimbledon, play the least possible and avoid the big danger of overtraining.

3—Among those of equal strength, select the players who already have played in the Davis cup matches.

4—Organize, somewhere outside of Paris by preference, an existence which will resemble as near as possible what they would have in America.

5—Arrange, two weeks before the inter-zone final, a thorough rest period devoid of tennis.

"As a comrade I am modestly giving my opinion," concludes Cochet. "It is worth what it is worth, perhaps nothing at all."

Cochet revealed in the article is not in sympathy with the suggestion that the U. S. pass up Wimbledon and proceed direct to Paris.

"It seems to me that real champions such as Wood, Shields, Allison and others can and must adapt themselves in a few days time either to grass after hard courts or to hard courts after grass," he is quoted as saying.

Traxlers Win By Two Points

Injury In Forepart Of Game To Kroen Handicaps Singers

Eintracht was upset last night at Sharon in an extra period game as the Traxlers won 28 to 26. When the Singers met Traxlers here they administered a healthy shelling. One of the reasons for the Singers' downfall was an injury to Kroen in the first half.

The summary:

Eintracht Fg. Fts. Pts. 11 4 26
Traxlers Fg. Fts. Pts. 12 4 28

Eintracht: Hill, f. 1 0 2; Rohrer, f. 3 3 9; Kroen, c. 0 0 0; Paulini, g. 6 1 13; Reiber, g. 1 0 2; Reiter, g. 0 0 0.

Traxlers: Abernathy, f. 5 5 10; Bailey, f. 3 0 6; Mehl, f. 0 0 0; Umlauf, c. 2 2 6; Parks, g. 1 1 3; Richardson, g. 1 0 2; Tomko, g. 0 1 1.

The game shapes up as a tough proposition for the red and black clad team. It would be hard to pick a winner in this game, as the teams are about evenly matched. Braddock is fast and rather dodd high does not boast of a fast team, neither do they have a husky team. They depend on two of the players for the most of their points, and these are Hale, a youngster standing about six feet three inches, who jumps center and Kreling, a forward. Kreling is fast and rather chunky. Hale may get the tip-off on Lasky as the New Castle boy is only five feet 11 inches tall.

Gostowski and Buckley are the Braddock guards and they are both good at long shots. They will have to be checked well out from the side of the floor.

New Castle will match Reiber and Nickie Uram with the best that Braddock can produce, and when Reiber is busting them in he is sure to make things interesting. Nickie Uram has been playing a fine defensive game.

New Castle high team will drive to Pittsburgh, leaving here about 2:30 or three o'clock. A pep assembly program is on the boards for senior high Monday morning to get a little enthusiasm for the Braddock game. The locals are all in good shape for the game that awaits them. A stiff practice session was held this morning.

Colonel Jake Ruppert of the Yankees will try to sign Babe Ruth for one year at the salary of $70,000, a season.

George Schosser, Beaver Falls, beat Damiano Mellaro, Ellwood City, in a three round bout at 160 pounds last night at Beaver Falls.

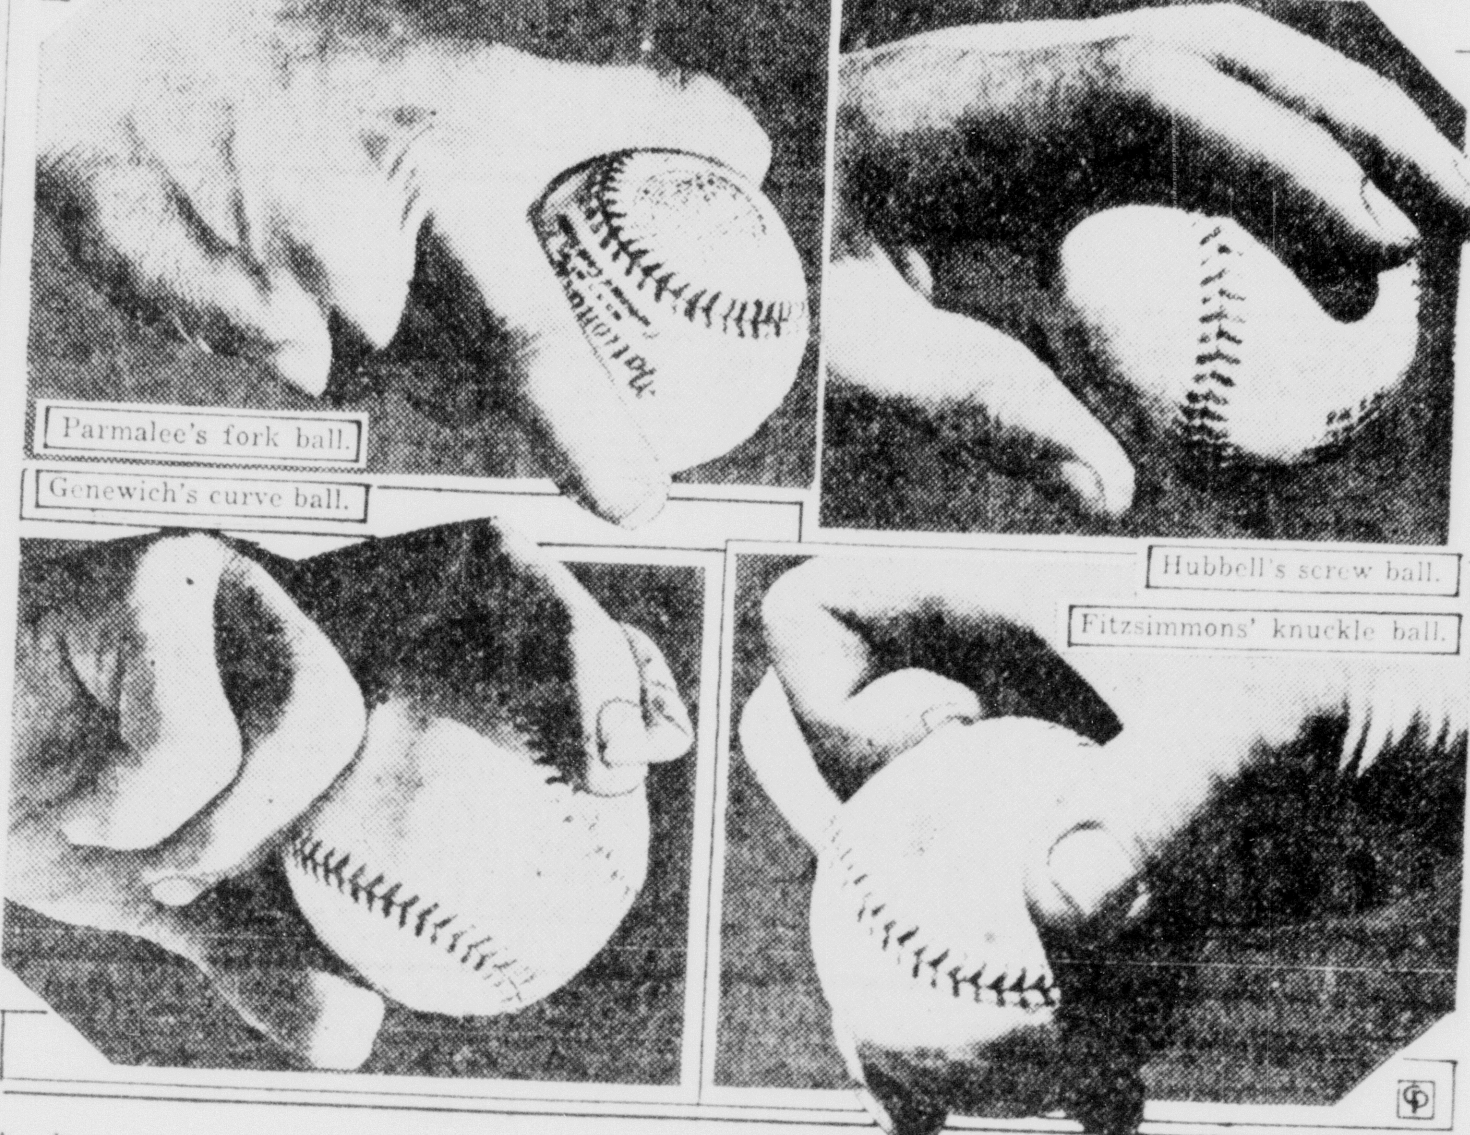

Robert Laters stated today he is preparing to emceed an aggregation of amateurs to do battle here within the next 10 days or two weeks. The show will be operated by the New Castle A. C. he says.

Charley Baxter captured a split verdict over Benny McArthur last night at Pittsburgh. Benny was down twice in round 1.

Damiano came here only recently from Italy. He cannot speak and does not understand our language.

Coach Bridenbaugh Puts New Castle High Team Through Paces Today

Locals In Fine Shape For Braddock Next Tuesday Night At Pitt Stadium

It is likely that about 150 students of senior high school will seek means of getting to Pittsburgh for the New Castle-Braddock game. A check of the school made by Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner showed in the neighborhood of 75, with possibilities that at least that many more will be put on the list.

And this means a lot of automobiles. The motorcade idea is a fine one. Principal F. L. Orth and a committee are working on this end of the game. They hope to have a fine representation of New Castle students at the stadium next Tuesday.

Inspiring Sight As 15,000 Boxing Fans Pray For Baby's Return

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—They prayed for the little eaglet in Madison Square Garden last night.

Fifteen thousand spectators at the Battalino-Ran bout arose at the request of announcer Joe Humphries and prayed in silence for the safe return of the Lindbergh baby.

Five years ago, Humphries asked 60,000 persons in the Yankee stadium to stand and pray for the safe flight to France of Lindbergh himself.

As the lights were dimmed, Humphries stood in mid-ring and led in an offering just as he had done when the brave young aviator was winning his way into the hearts of the whole world.

Battalino Wins From Eddie Ran

Bat Battalino Realizes Dream Of Becoming Welterweight Boxer

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—The triple dream of Bob Battalino, Mickey Walker and Tony Canzonieri were Bat Battalino's today.

The former featherweight champion spotted eight pounds at Madison Square Garden last night to Eddie Ran, a 146 pound welterweight, and a good one, and won a unanimous decision in ten rounds by a wide margin.

Bat's accomplishment was a threefold one. Making his first start as a welterweight, he tipped the scales at 138 pounds, the little Connecticut bulldog firmly established himself as a contender for the lightweight and middleweight crowns, earned a $50,000 bout with Billy Petrolle here on March 23, and regained the prestige he lost through his ill-advised attempt in Cincinnati recently to pass his featherweight championship along to Freddie Miller, a stablemate.

The battle was fairly even up to the fifth round when the tide turned to Battalino. In the eighth round knees sagged from a right to the jaw and he slipped to the floor for no count. The Pole was trying badly at the finish and just lasted.

Two Titan Men On District Quintet

Brownlee And Rice Chosen In Press Poll As Best In Section

Harry "Bud" Brownlee, Westminster floor star and center extraordinaire, and Phil Rice, the eighth round guard and captain of the Titan quintet, were chosen on the first team selected by a leading news service along with Lawry of Pitt, Jackson of Tech, and Autman, of Geneva. Brownlee was high man in the roll with 20 points. Rice and Autman were tied with 13 points apiece.

Silander won his way to the second team with six points, while McDonald, Duquesne, Smith, Tech, Montgomery, Geneva, and Garbarik Allegheny, go to make up the second team.

That first team is a daisy, and one that would give the best team in the country a basketball contest of no mean proportions.

Despite a slowing up of building over United States generally, a total of 121 commercial and 107 municipal airports are recorded by the department of commerce as having been added to the airport may in 1931.

'Break' Would Help Pirates

All Departments Look Impressive Except Young Catching Staff

PITCHERS DO NOT WORRY GIBSON

(International News Service) PASO ROBLES, Calif., Mar. 12.—Give the Pirates a "break" or two and the revamped club, under George Gibson, is likely to cross up the prophets in the coming National League campaign.

The team is generally regarded as a second division entry, but it should be remembered that in 1921 this same George Gibson brought a club to the scratch that had little more to recommend it than has the present aggregation, yet that 1921 team rode the ones until the Giants disclosed them in August.

Gibby, however, has to produce a first-class catcher very shortly as the staff at present is made up of three youngsters—Hal Finney, Bill Brenzel and Earl Grace.

The remaining departments of the club are impressive. The first base staff, the catching division, are youngsters loaded with ginger. Finney made a big hit in his few games as a Pirate last year, while Brenzel, catching for the San Francisco Missions of the Pacific Coast League, was a standout in the class A. A. belt. The two lads are staging an exciting fight for the first string job.

Good Pitchers' Staff
Gibson holds a feeling of comfort as he ponders his pitchers. And it would seem that a club which can call upon Meinie, Kremer, French, Brame, Harris, Spencer, Swetonic and several promising rookies is in a fair way to make trouble for all rivals, including the flag contenders.

The new pilot is working hard to whip a high-class infield into shape. Capt. Traynor, of course, is the top so far as third basemen are concerned. Over at the other corner, the freebooters sport a classy fielding first-sacker in Gus Suhr, but Suhr, a home-run socker in the Coast League, has fallen down in his hitting; that is he did last year after having driven in more than 100 runs in his first Major League campaign. Gibson thinks Suhr can and will hit. He is a good baserunner and a hustler.

Thievenow is one of the finest field shortstops in baseball and he is apt to play regularly, although he will have to bat more in consistent with the middle bag. Thevenow is likely to co-operate with Tony Piet, a powerful young Pole who made a great showing in 40 odd games last season.

Shortstop Floyd Vaughn, of Wichita, and second baseman Howard Gross, who starred for the Pirates for a while last season, are two of the most promising of the rookies. Vaughn is a big boy for whom the Pirates were offered a princely sum by another Major League team.

Hard Hitting Pirates
The two youngsters, Comorosky, Jensen, Barbee and Dugan give the Pirates a wonderful array for patrol duty. And every one of the galaxy can hit. The Waners need no introduction; they are just about an outfield in themselves, and on the offense they are a nightmare to any pitcher. Comorosky has been a power hitter in 1931, and star that he is, he may lose his berth to Jensen or Barbee. The former is a great fly-chaser, fast, and he looks like a batsman. He swings from the left side.

Barbee cracked out 47 homers in the Coast League to win his way back to the big show. He formerly had a trout with the Athletics. The Buccos need a slugger of his type, so the big boy may land a regular berth.

Dugan, a sturdy lefthand hitter, was good enough to lead the American Association in batting, which is a pretty fair recommendation in itself.

Walker-Fields Bout Winners

Walker Kayoes Maloney And Fields Kayoes Izzy Kline

(International News Service) SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Mar. 12.—Mickey Walker, former middle and welterweight champion, had continued his havoc among the heavyweights today.

The "little bulldog" scored a technical knockout over Jimmy Maloney of Boston, not so many years ago a ranking contender for the crack at the heavyweight title, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight here last night.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, fighting in the semi-windup, knocked out Izzy Kline of Philadelphia in the first round of a battle scheduled to go 10 rounds.

What a dream in that Pullman berth aboard the southbound express: McWhosis up! bawls the world series radio announcer. "It's a home run, folks. Boy, oh, boy, oh, boy, what a drive!"

The manager seems cold and brutal as he makes his little speech. But he has been through it so many times, this worst part of his job.

"You see, kid," the big boss says, "you're not quite fast enough—not yet. With experience you'll probably make it—some day. That's it. You've got to have more experience. 'No. We've 'firmed out our limit and—no, I don't know any club in the Association or on the coast that needs a spec. filled. Isn't the Corn States circuit up around your way? Why not try that league? Just a minute, Ed—well, so long, kid. Good luck!"

Good luck! Bam! Let him alone—he's still in a daze. All players have no feelings. Maybe that explains why no rookies jump off the train that is bringing them back to face the home folks.

SPYING ON SPORTS

By WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor, Five per cent. Not much, eh?

Well, five per cent is the average number of rookies who make good in the training camps each year. Some statisticians have figured it and morning and evening will be in charge of the various pastors who will supervise interesting programs. The program of worship in the local churches is announced as follows:

Christian Church

The Men's Class has regained second place in the attendance contest and is leading by 37 in total attendance. Every member of the class is urged to be present Sunday morning. St. Mary's Take Decisive Win, 47-28, In Valley Town Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Mar. 12.—The tables were quite turned last night when the Hot Mills, champions of the Shelby League, were trounced by the crack St. Mary's team of Beaver Falls last night by a 47-28 score at the latter's floor.

It was fine game until the latter part of the third quarter when the home team unleashed a scoring attack that the Ellwood team found difficult to cope with. The score at half time was 25-19 for St. Mary's.

Small Gains Made In Market Today

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—The stock market stiffened today after early irregularity. Yesterday's reaction brought further selling into the list at the opening but prices improved as this was absorbed and small gains were the rule toward the close.

Trading generally was at a slow pace. There were a few notable exceptions, however. Kreuger & Toll opened on a block of 15,000 shares at 5, only a quarter of a point above its bear market low. This was followed by three more blocks of 8,400, 5,000 and 5,000 more, all at the same price. The stock improved fractionally later, some of the oils like Socony-Vacuum and Ohio Oil also came out in large blocks.

There was little in the news to influence the course of trading. The Copper curtailment and sales agreement passed with little effect on the metal shares. Sterling steady but quiet in London. Commodities were generally easier while bonds were lower on profit-taking.

Strength in U. S. Steel was responsible for the better tone in the market.

Genkinger Is 57 Years Old Today

One Of City's Foremost Citizens Busy Receiving Greetings

Louis Genkinger, city councilman, president of the chamber of commerce and affiliated with every move for the promotion of this city today was busy receiving birthday greetings as he is 57 years old today.

When a reporter called at the office of the director of city parks and buildings half a dozen or more citizens were in Mr. Genkinger's office expressing greetings.

However, Mr. Genkinger did not let the fact that his birthday is today keep him from hard work. Instead he plunged into city affairs only to be interrupted time and again.

Beauties Both

This pretty picture was snapped at the Philadelphia Flower Show as Miss Pat Farrell looked over some prize-winning orchids. This is the 100th anniversary of the show, which has the distinction of being the first in America, having been held at Philadelphia in 1832 by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, which was organized in 1827.

Life for Attack

Convicted of a criminal attack upon a Japanese mother of four children, John Fernandez, 21-year-old Portuguese resident of Honolulu, Hawaii, has been sentenced to life imprisonment. Fernandez, the father of three children, all under five years of age, wrote a farewell letter to his young wife, who is heartbroken and poverty-stricken, advising her to "forget me, get a good man."

BOOST 'JOB DRIVE'

Hoping that as a result of their house-to-house visits in the city's residential districts today, new jobs may be created for a large amount of local jobless men, an army of 135 Boy Scouts were attempting to do their "depression war" good turn as best they could.

The youths called at homes and left circulars which urged the home occupants to make possible some type of work for the unemployed.

Troops represented were: Troop V-1, 2, 4, V-5, 6, 7, 10, 12, 13, 15, 17, 18, 21, 37 and 55. Scout Commissioner R. F. Davis was directing the canvass.

From Sino-Japanese War Front

These two pictures from the war zone at Shanghai give an idea of the horror of death and destruction that prevails in the Far East. Left is a scene from Chapei, where successive bombardments have reduced the once beautiful streets to a wilderness of havoc and death. Note the bodies of Chinese scattered about the roadway. Many non-combatants as well as soldiers were killed here by the terrific naval bombardment. Right is a battery of Japanese artillery in action against the Chinese defenders of Chapei. These guns wrought fearful destruction when they poured high explosive shells into the city.

Taking the Air Via Aquaplane

The bounding main doesn't bound vigorously enough to supply a thrill to these aquaplane enthusiasts, so they have to work in a thrill or two of their own making. Photo was made at Winter Haven, Fla., where Bob Eastman, Carl Bryson and Dave Leonard invented this novel method to keep from growing old. They are shown soaring clear over a speedboat on their aquaplane, which is being towed by another power boat at 40 miles an hour. The takeoff is worked by means of an inclined platform on the course. One wonders whether thrills or spills are in the majority.

AMERICAN WINS PRIZE FOR DESIGNING 'SOVIET PALACE'

This design for the "Palace of Soviets," in Moscow, won Hector Hamilton, New York architect, in a contest, the sum of $6,000 by the Soviet union. It is patterned after the American skyscraper and is said to be a modern adaptation of the upflowing lines of Gothic architecture.

Dad Is Still the Boss

That the younger generation is not yet able to push its elder aside was recently established at Aiken, S. C., when Eugene G. Grace (right), president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, beat his son Charles in the finals for the Dolan Golf Cup. Both father and son were successful in reaching the last stanza of the tournament, where the elder Grace defeated his son. Winner and runner-up are shown after the presentation of the trophy.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press. NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—What few New Yorkers know:

That first news of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping reached the public from the floor of the Granada Cafe, in Chicago—where the program of dance music was interrupted by Columbia Broadcasting System for the dramatic flash.

That waiters and waitresses in many Manhattan eateries pay for the privilege of holding down their jobs. The girls who serve patrons of Alice Peete MacDougal's Grand Central shop pay the cashier $10 weekly apiece.

That the largest number of authentic Russian blue bloods and nobility ever assembled for a single movie—400 of them—are now employed as extras in the production of "The World and the Flesh" with George Bancroft.

That a hearty whiff of certain potent perfumes will still pang of hunger, as chemists who have undertaken to reduce will tell you.

That on August 5, 1877, the New York "Sun" published the exultant news that there were five telephones in daily use in town, and noted that customers were being lured into trying out the now-fangled device by a month's free service.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

A Boy Scout called at our home today with a circular. Read it. In it you will find a resume of the unemployment plan adopted for New Castle, and if this plan is to succeed it will be because you have aided in it.

After you have read the circular don't throw it away. There is a coupon inside which gives you an opportunity to set out what work you need done, when you want it done and how many men you need. Next Wednesday these circulars will be taken up by another group and the men started out.

Now is the time to get work done at a price you can't afford to overlook. No matter what kind of work you have to be done, there are men ready to do it.

And another thing. If you can go to Pittsburgh Tuesday night and can haul a couple of extras, call the Motor Club, 3075, and tell them.

Begins to appear as if that story of Washington's stopping in New Castle over night on his trip to Fort Le Boeuf in 1753 will get an airing. The origin of the story arises out of a record in one of G. W.'s diaries that he stopped at the confluence of two rivers in this valley. That would be the Neshannock and the Shenango, it is thought.

The mystery of the stopped well out at Troop F stables is solved. In the meantime the water has been purified half a dozen times so the story can be told without causing any international tangles.

Some time ago the well seemed to quit. Pump as you would, the water wasn't there and the troopers thought it might be the cold weather. An examination showed the well not to be frozen and still the pump was as useless as a button on a necktie.

Finally an interior examination of the pump was ordered and the cause of all the trouble was found. A little bit of a mouse had dropped in or fallen in the well and the suction of the pump had drawn it up into the plunger. Tough on the mouse.

Mrs. J. V. Cunningham revealed an interesting fact concerning Troop F yesterday. She has in her possession the first guidon ever carried by Troop F, back in 1904. For years she has been keeping it, hoping that some day there would be an armory built here so she could turn it over for a place in the trophy room.

Captain Joseph V. Cunningham was then just a youngster who had come back from the Philippines and had organized a troop of cavalry here. He wanted a guidon for his new troop and buying the silk necessary, asked his fiancée if she would make it. She did, and still has the guidon waiting for the new armory.

It has been suggested that a room be set aside in the new armory for a trophy room and this seems to be a good idea. Mrs. Cunningham has a number of other military relics which she will turn over to the troop and there are a number of people in the city who would be glad to turn over articles of interest to the troop if they had a safe place in which to keep them.

GIRL'S CLOTHES BUDGETS PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 12.—An advanced home economics class at Temple University, under the direction of Miss Laura Anderson, head of the department, has worked out budgets for the average high school girl's clothes. They come to $11 or less. The budgets are complete and quite varied. Polo coats figure in most of them as the practical lightweight coat. Color schemes play an important part in the budget, also, the entire outfit centering about one color, with which all accessories, hats and shoes would harmonize.
